

This is a short, short, blog, because I am departing for China today. So I'll fly over the North Pole and find out for myself what the other side of our beautiful planet is like. In the meantime, do something green and good for the planet, and I'll try and do the same.

